BIG CROP OF MELONS

TO PLANT 1,500 ACRES IN CANTALOUPE IN PECOS VALLEY.

Expect to Ship Thousands of Crates From District Between Portales and Pecos City This Season.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Artesia.—The New Mexico cantaloupe is to tickle the palate of the epicurean more than ever before this coming season and the shipments from the Pecos valley are to break all records. The question of whether or not it pays to raise cantaloupes is answered eloquently by the statement that there will be over 1,500 acres of the melons planted between Portales, Roosevelt county and Pecos City, Tex., below the southern border, meaning thousands of crates for the market, to satisfy an ever increasing demand.

With better than 300 acres of cantaloupes already planted around Artesia and a few yet to be put in the ground, indications are that this will be one of the banner years for the cantaloupe farmers of the valley. According to the men who have planted cantaloupes before, this spring has been exceptionally good and the work has been rushed in getting them planted.

At Portales there will be 250 acres grown; 200 acres at Roswell; 300 acres here; 200 acres at Lakewood, and 250 acres at Pecos City, Tex.

Besides this crop there will be 300 acres of tomatoes planted at Lakewood. The latter has proven to be one of the best paying crops in the valley.

TAMPICO IS SET ON FIRE

BLAZING RUINS MAKE CITY AN EASY MARK FOR GUNS; REBELS SLAY HUNDREDS IN NIGHT ATTACK.

OIL WELLS FIRED

AMERICAN CITIZENS RUSHED TO PLACES OF SAFETY IN HARBOR AS 7,000 MEN OPEN DESPERATE BATTLE.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Juarez, May 11.—The most desperate battle of the present Mexico Revolution was fought last night at Tampico, according to reports reaching constitutionalist officials here. Some of the oil wells and tanks are burning and a portion of the town is on fire. Hundreds are said to have been killed.

Seven thousand Constitutionalists under Generals Pedro Gonzales and Luis Caballero are engaged.

General Jesus Carranza with his brigade was thought to form a part of the force attacking Tampico but it was learned that it had been decided that he was needed in the campaign on Saltillo, and the Carranza brigade was sent back to Monterey.

All Americans have been taken aboard the United States warships, but other foreigners are scattered throughout the oil well district. It was this section of the battlefield that the United States government suggested should be made a neutral zone. The Constitutionalist generals refused to adopt this suggestion.

By the light of the blazing oil tanks fired by stray shots, the rebel artillerymen hurled shot after shot from twenty heavy field-guns into the strongly-entrenched position held by General Ignacio Morelos Zaragonza the federal commander, in the center of the town, sweeping the breastworks with a hail of shrapnel in an effort to open the way for a dash by General Pablo Gonzales' infantry.

For the first time in the fighting between the men of Huerta and Carranza, the Constitutionalists were on equal terms with the Federals in the matter of artillery.

The twenty French field guns captured by General Gonzales at Monterey and placed in position before Tampico have done tremendous execution, the French shrapnel bursting with the utmost precision in sharp contrast to the home-made shells used by Villa in his battles about Torreón.

General Gonzales, advancing from the north under cover of the artillery fire, seized a portion of the outskirts of the city and maintained his position.

Sartorial Controversy.

An Atchison man said that $5 was recently bet that Andy Ketcham possessed more suits of clothes when he left Atchison than Taft owned when he left the White House. To decide the bet Wilbur Hawk was written to at the Federal Penitentiary. Mr. Hawk wrote back that when Taft surrendered his office to Wilson he had 35 suits of clothes. It is local history that Andy Ketcham owned 37 suits when he got the hot-foot and deserted Atchison for more hospitable climes. Andy hasn't done much since he left Atchison, and it is said that the only clothes he now possesses is a pair of overalls.—Atchison Globe.
